TSC to Continue Operating Daycare Facility On Campus

As TSC moves to become operationally independent in the fall of 2013, the management of numerous programs and activities will change, due to the end of the contractual agreement between Texas Southmost College and The University of Texas System, which established the UTB-TSC Partnership.

One such change relates to the operations of the Center for Early Childhood Studies and the Raul Guerra Childcare Center. In May 2012, Texas Southmost College announced that TSC instructional programs currently being offered through the UTB-TSC Partnership would continue when TSC opened in the fall of 2013, with the understanding that certain program improvements would need to be addressed by program leaders and faculty, with full support of the College.

That announcement included the Early Childhood-6th Grade Teaching program, which utilizes the daycare center as an observation site. In support of this program’s instructional purpose, TSC will continue to operate a daycare facility on campus. The College is committed to ensuring that students within this program have access to an onsite training location when the College opens in the fall of 2013.
